

Kindergarten News

For the week of
January 23 - January 27

- Child of the week this week was Aly. Aly's family brought in their ipad and we played a few games of Mad Libs. The students picked words to make a silly story. Ask them the name of the dog in the story!
- Our letter this week was Bb. While most of the students can easily identify the sound Bb makes it is not as easy to correctly write the Bb as it is easily mixed up with Dd. We remember that when we write a Bb we start at the top of the bat and come back up to make the ball, with Dd we start with the drum and circle around and up to make the drum stick.
- In math this week we introduced math mountains and the tiny tumblers. Look in this week's Friday folder for your child's math mountain and have them explain the concept.
- Red words for the week: down and up
- In religion we talked about how to show that we care for others. At mass today a visiting priest said that our kindergarteners are the best behaved he has ever seen! Way to go kindergarten!!!
- We are beginning our exploration of the human body in science. We began with external body parts and the skeleton and will be moving onto other internal body parts and what they do.
- Report cards came home this week. If you haven't signed and returned the yellow envelope please do so next week.
- Our next library day is Friday. Please return books by then.
- We are coming up on our 100th day of school! We are asking each student to complete a 100th day project. Look for details on an orange piece of paper in the Friday folder.

Have a great weekend,
Tina Fairweather
